

7 WAYS YOUR EMPLOYEE SCREENING SHOULD GIVE YOU THE COMPETITIVE EDGE

The staffing industry is so competitive that the best firms need whatever competitive edge they can get. And what's more competitive than presenting the perfect candidate? If your current employee screening firm isn't doing these seven things, they're not helping you get the competitive edge:

They give you a reliably short turnaround time, allowing you to place people faster and beat the competition to the punch.

They search the right data and verify the results, instead of just searching through free online records, which may not be updated—and can burn your clients, costing you the account.

Their services leverage technology and automation that free up time for you and your team, so everyone can use their time more profitably instead of spending it on the clerical aspects of employee screening.

Their background check request process is fast and user-friendly, so you can make your request and then move on to doing what you do best: bringing together employers with the right candidates.

Their platform integrates with your applicant tracking system, so you enjoy a seamless and thorough background check process.

Their background checks are reviewed by real investigators—not by software, not by an administrative assistant—so you have a trained professional to speak with in case you need support or clarification.

They offer you the ability to custom-design your background checks—at competitive prices—so you're not forced to use pre-assembled packages that have no value for your unique situation.
